

Bio

I was born in 1980 in Athens, Greece. I read economics at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where I also did some graduate work. I subsequently migrated to political philosophy, eventually completing a doctorate at Oxford, where I was supervised by G.A. Cohen.

I work as associate professor in Practical Philosophy at Erasmus University Rotterdam and as associate professor in Political Philosophy at the University of Athens. Before that, I taught at Leiden, UC Louvain, KU Leuven, and Cambridge, where I was also Director of Studies in Philosophy at Jesus College and Trinity Hall.

I have held fellowships at Princeton University's Center for Human Values (2015-16), at the Aarhus Institute for Advanced Study (2018-19), and at Harvard University's Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics (2023-24).

I am an associate editor of Politics, Philosophy & Economics, of the Review of Social Economy, and a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Social Philosophy. Since 2019 I have also been PI for the Inequality against Freedom project.
